Some people treat their parents as friends rather than as parents. Others prefer to stay set in the traditional roles of parents and children. Which do you prefer and why? Use details and examples in your decision.
I think there are certain times in your life when you need parents to just be parents; but overall, I prefer to have my parents be friends. Of course, when you are growing up and learning about everything, it is best to have parents in their traditional role there to teach you right and wrong and about life. The role of the parent is to protect and teach their children. But, at a certain age, the child doesn’t need to be taught so much by their parents. I think, after the child has matured enough, it is nice to have your parents become your friends. They can be your best friends because they have known you longer than anyone and they often know you better than anyone. They have given you so much through your life; it is nice to be able to give them your friendship in return to pay them back for all they’ve done.
