Some students prefer to study for an exam alone. Others prefer to study for an exam with classmates. Which method do you prefer and why? Give details and examples in your response.
I prefer to study for an exam alone. I am easily distracted, and it is better for me if I have less distractions. When I study with another person, sometimes I would rather chat with them or talk to them instead of keeping my mind focused on the material at hand. If I can study by myself, I can also focus on the parts of the material that I need help with. When I study with another person, I must go over the things that I don’t understand as well as go over the things that they don’t understand. It would take more time to study with more people. I can save a lot of time by just going over the parts of the material that I can’t remember and the parts that I don’t understand clearly. Also, when there are fewer distractions and other things to think about, I can concentrate on my studying rather than what funny hat my study partner is wearing.
